Kim Thúy fled Vietnam as a child with her family, arriving in Quebec in 1978. Her bestselling novel Ru won the Governor General's Award for French-language fiction and was followed by Mãn, Vi and Le secret des Vietnamiennes.

Jen Sookfong Lee is a Canadian broadcaster and novelist. Her published works include The End of East, The Better Mother, Shelter, Gentlemen of the Shade, and The Conjoined, which was nominated for the Ethel Wilson Fiction Prize.

Mariko Tamaki has garnered much acclaim for both her written and performance-based work. She is the co-creator of This One Summer, with Jillian Tamaki, and Laura Dean Keeps Breaking Up With Me, with Rosemary Valero-O'Connell, both of which received Eisner Awards and Printz Honors.

Kuljinder Kaur Brar is an elementary school teacher. Born and raised in British Columbia, she is the daughter of Sikh immigrants from Punjab, India. Her debut picture book, My Name is Saajin Singh, was born out of her desire to change the lack of representation of Sikh protagonists in books.
